IMPARTIAL, NOT NEUTRAL.

SHANGHAI, SATURDAY, MARCH 5 1864

THE example of the English Consulate in publishing a list of Land Renters registered in its books, might be advantageously followed by those of America and France. In a conveniently sized pamphlet of eighteen pages, the owners of between seven and eight hundred lots are set forth alphabetically together with the area and rent of their property, and the number of the Register, to which the List thus serves as index. The total quantity of land registered at the English Consulate in the names of foreign owners is 7,116 mow 9 fun and 7 le, equalling 1,186.17 English acres. It must not be supposed, however, that the whole of this is owned by British subjects; the names of several, Germans and Portuguese appear among others, though by far the larger portion is registered in the names of members of the leading English firms. Nor are all the lots specified situated in the English concession; a considerable part of the Hong-que settlement is registered at the English Consulate. We imagine that during ensuing year the increase to the Land List will be inconsiderable, compared with that which has taken place since 1862. Little disposition appears to exist on the part of foreigners to acquire property beyond the bridge which marks the limit of free pedestrianism on the Bubbling Well Road. Indeed, now that the Futai has instituted so determined a campaign again those unprincipled individuals who desire to desecrate the sacred soil of the Flowery Land by taking it into their barbarian possession, it is doubtful whether the extension of the settlement much farther inland from the Wong-poo would not be opposed, on the plea that it was encroaching on the interior. The fixed boundary has, in fact, already been considerably depassed; but the much controverted expression "other places," in the twelfth article of the treaty, may at least be interpreted sufficiently liberally to enable foreigners to acquire land in the districts bordering on the settlements, even though not strictly within their limits. With this concession we fear, keeping Lord Russell's despatch of February 1863 in view, foreigners will for the present have to rest satisfied. Notwithstanding the questionable expression "other places," and the still more open one signifying "every place" in the Chinese version of the treaty, it is clear that the English government are not inclined to press the Chinese to withdraw the existing restrictions, and it is very evident that the latter are quite unlikely to adopt any such measure themselves. But a consolation may be found by the Anglo-Saxons who are chafing at the arbritrary limits thus set to their expansive propensities, in the thought that the advantage of investment in property in the interior is very questionable. Those who have incurred the wrath of the Futai by purchasing land and houses at Soochow, of course did so under the impression that, when it was recaptured, there would be a reflux of the former inhabitants, and their property would suddenly leap from the value which might be attached to an investment in fairyland to that of a substantial holding in an important commercial city. But no such reflux of inhabitants has taken place; on the contrary, the Futai has already publicly expressed his regret that the gigantic efforts which he has been making for the public weal are so little appreciated.

My earnest desire was that the destitute might return to their former habitations, and as soon as Soochow was captured, I immediately endeavoured to induce the people to cultivate their fields and live in their houses, lest the city should lose its name and mercantile greatness. From the time of the surrender of the city, I have diligently searched out and sought quiest within and outside the city for those who might return to it. How few have made their appearance!

But the destitute did not respond to the appeal. They were comfortably housed within the precincts of the foreign settlements at Shanghai, and charmed by the unprecedented immunity from squeezes which they enjoyed, declined to transfer their families from a scene of safety and prosperity to one of insecurity and ruin. The commercial greatness of Soochow has now been transfered to Shanghai, and the former is never likely to regain its previous importance. It seems likely, therefore, that foreigners, instead of having reason to reproach the Futai for interfering with a profitable speculation, by objecting to their holding land in Soochow, will rather have reason to congratulate themselves on being relieved of their purchases. Soochow is now nearly deserted, and its former inhabitants show no present symptom of inclination to return. Thus, although there appears little prospect of our having, at least for a long time to come, to comment on a Land List for Soochow, we do not think foreign residents in China are likely to be great losers by the fact. A prominent place has been given at the end of the pamphlet under review to the definition of the contents of a Shanghai mow, which was first published in our daily issue of the 26th ultimo. The official area is now fixed at 7,260 square feet, which is, we believe, much more than it had previously been computed at.

HAD the North China Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society been in existence during the past two years, much might have been done towards advancing our knowledge of the literature and history, as well as of the manners and customs of the Chinese. The importance of the object aimed at by such a society must at once engage the active sympathy of all those interested in the pursuit of information regarding the people amongst whom we are placed. It is, therefore, deeply to be regretted that so valuable an institution should ever have been permitted to collapse, or that paucity of numbers should have eventually interfered with its working. From the time at which the society was formed until its extinction, no difficulty was experienced in obtaining funds or in collecting audiences. However necessary both these may be, there is, notwithstanding, another requisite which cannot be forgotten. There must be a certain number of working members ready to contribute the results of their experience, or the produce of their labours. In Shanghai there have always been men capable of writing articles on subjects of general interest, if, only, the superfluous energy of the community had been directed into the requisite channels. But the death in the year 1861 of the President of the Society, put a sudden stop to even that modicum of interest which had been felt in the investigation of important literary and scientific questions connected with China and Japan. The loss to the community and to the Oriental Society at home was considerable, but we trust that, now, a renewed life will animate the old members, and that those who elect to join the band of explorers newly formed will possess sufficient enthusiasm to carry them through the disappointments and difficulties with which a newly established institution has generally to contend. The papers contributed to the Journal during the years through which its publication continued, are in many cases valuable, and in every instance interesting. The writers would seem to have realised the fact that in a field so little explored as China is, every step must necessarily be a step in advance, and must contribute to the mass of information on Oriental subjects which the savans of the West are gradually storing up. The investigations laid before the society should be, for the most part, confined to subjects in some way connected with the East. This provision will shut out discussions on matters irrelevant to the general interests of the Society. but at the same time, it leaves open a vast but almost totally unknown region for exploration. The arts and sciences with which the denizens of the far East are either now acquainted, or which have fallen into disuse, are objects well worthy of investigation. The literature, with which the most erudite of western scholars can claim but a slight acquaintance, must eventually be subjected to a rigid examination, in order to discover what germs of truth may have lain hidden in the breasts of the poets and philosophers of China. The least enthusiastic of explorers in this field confess the advantage which will accrue to us when we become more fully acquainted with Chinese forms of thought. For it is through the investigation of the forms in which a nation thinks, that we arrive at the general principles which guide its actions. The spirit of enquiry which more or less animates every educated man is fostered by such institutions as the Asiatic Society, and through its aid and encouragement many luminous ideas may be elicited from residents at this port, whose modesty or indolence would otherwise prevent their ever giving their thoughts or discoveries to the world. We publish in another column the constitution and Bye-laws under which the North-China Branch of the Society formerly worked. It will be seen that, besides those subjects which are immediately connected with China and the surrounding nations, matters of general interest may be brought before the public by lecturers acting under the sanction of the Society. There will thus be a provision made for those whose sympathies are not enlisted on the side of the investigation of oriental matters. If, as was suggested at the meeting held on Tuesday last, a Debating Society were formed and affiliated, many interesting discussions might take place on political, literary and artistic subjects. The Society's meeting room would thus become an agreeable lounge in the evenings, where the visitors could enjoy the pleasure either of hearing themselves talk or of criticising the opinions of others. We wish the promoters of the movement every success in their attempt to reorganise the Society, and we trust that their efforts will be crowned by many discoveries amongst the long neglected archives of Chinese history, literature and art.

A CORRESPONDENT has called our attention to two points in which the translation of the Futai's proclamation regarding the execution of the Wangs, as published in our last issue, fails to convey the sense of the Chinese version.

The first occurs in the passage "still "less can it be said that * * * * these "men could have been empowered in "tendering their submission, &c., &c., &c." The Chinese version does not contain any expression equivalent to that printed in italics—'in tendering their submission;' it does, however, contain a phrase which, properly rendered, would read 'after having submitted.'

The second occurs in the passage "at "first, in the negotiations for the sub- "mission, for the murder of the so- "styled Mo Wang, for the surrender of "the N.E. gate, &c., &c., &c.," Here the word 'for' is incorrectly repeated, and that, too, in such a way as to make the Futai say that Gordon had been cognizant of, and a party to negotiations for the murder of the Mo Wang. The words in the Chinese version, as the context shows, do not warrant the rendering given in the published translation. Freely translated, the passage means, 'with what they did before they 'came to the camp, namely with their 'negociations for submission, with the 'murder of the Mo Wang, with the sur- 'sender of a gate, and with the fixing 'of a time for a visit to the camp—with 'these, Gordon was acquainted; but of 'what they did, and that, too, after 'having submitted, when visiting the 'camp, Gordon was ignorant, and with 'the punishment inflicted he had nothing 'to do.'

THE HANKOW CUSTOMS.

WHEN British or American merchants hold an indignation meeting, we are somewhat apt to imagine that the traditional right of Britons to grumble has had something to do with the ventilation of the grievances in question. Indeed it has long since been granted that not only is the right to complain prescriptive to Englishmen, but that a man without a grievance cannot with any chance of being believed lay claim to the privileges of a Briton. No doubt we all feel the advantage of allowing the restrained grumblings to escape, and we may thus account for many public meetings got up on frivolous pretexts. Sometimes, however, circumstances arise calculated to ruffle the most angelic temper, and then meetings are held and resolutions passed—which, after all, generally end in smoke. We have yet to discover whether the protest made by the merchants of Hankow against the exercise of "a little brief authority" on the part of the Acting Commissioner of Customs will so end. We sincerely trust that it may not. If we judge by the correspondence which will be found appended to the minutes of the meeting held at Hankow on the 21st instant, we must come to the conclusion that the mercantile body, and more especially the Shanghai Steam Navigation Company, have valid grounds for complaint. The proceedings of the meeting, and the correspondence which took place on the matter will be found in another column. It will be seen that, according to the unsupported statement of a tidewaiter, two inferior officers of the Huquong indulged towards him in language by no means parliamentary. We cannot sufficiently admire the philosophic composure or Christian feeling which must have been sufficiently powerful to deter Mr. Tidewaiter Gray from using his fists like one of the ungodly when subjected to abuse so vile. Perhaps his early training may have been such that he learned for the first time on board the Huquong that

The Hebrew noun which means "I am," The English always use to govern the accusative.

Yet Mr. Gray seems to linger over the expressions which he asserts were used, and to gloat over their expressive force, and their truly English simplicity. He was not satisfied with the report which he handed to Mr. Macpherson on the 15th instant, but he also claimed a hearing from Mr. Consul Breck, to whom he imparted a few more of his "experiences." Unfortunately for him, no less than five officers attached to the Huquong swore positively that no such expressions had been used, and that, on that occasion at least, the Custom House and the Custom House officials had not come in for any of the reviling sometimes levelled at it by irascible skippers. As well as we can collect from the statements made, it would appear that the dispute originated from Mr. Gray's having presented himself at the breakfast table, but whether at the saloon table or at one of the inferior messes we are not informed. Doubtless Mr. Gray is a very respectable man, as well as a very discreet and religious character. Doubtless, also, those naughty words with which the chief officer and assistant engineer defiled their tongues would never have passed the chaste lips of the model tidewaiter. But there are many very reputable people whom we every day meet in the way of business,—our shoemaker and barber for instance—with whom we should not care to sit down to table, and before whom we could not or would not discuss our private affairs. Many of these people are as good as we—many doubtless better—but in education they are generally deficient, and with them we have no sympathies in common. When, therefore, as is sometimes the case, a lady dines on board a steamer in port, or when, as every day occurs, gentlemen sit down to dinner with the Captain, a pleasant chat is expected, and in this such a gentleman as Mr. Gray would probably be out of his element. Happiness consists simply in the fitness of things; and hence some learned divines have made the deduction that the "wicked" would be miserable in heaven. Without pledging ourselves to the theological dogma, we may assume the principle upon which it is based, and conclude that in the society of gentlemen, the majority of tidewaiters would her unhappy. This must have known, and ought from the first to prevented any question from arising to the right of the tidewaiters as with the officers. But even ing that Mr. Gray had a perfect to mess where he liked and with he liked, and also taking for d that Messrs. Burn, Wakeman, son, Gorman and Edwards perjured elves in the most deliberate manner, e totally at a loss to discover upon grounds the Acting Commissioner stoms took up the matter. Had sult which Mr. Gray asserts that he ned, been offered to him by the in of the ship, then, indeed Mr. herson might have been justified in g the question one between the rial Maritime Customs and the ghai Steam Navigation Company. he dispute, if it existed at all, was trictly private nature, and involved reach of Treaty stipulations or of quent rules. In taking cognizance , Mr. Macpherson, therefore, com- ised himself, and has contrived to he Customs into a serious difficulty. American Consul very properly de- fended the vessel's papers, in order to allow o bring down the mail, but, as a matter ourse, freight was completely lost. presume that the Company will sue Customs for this lost of freight, and o doing will elevate Mr. Tidewaiter r to an importance to which in his ast moments he could never have d to attain. The matter will e before the Inspector General, and therefore confidently expect that a will for the future be put to indis- minate stretches of authority, by which chants are sadly inconvenienced, and h undeserved odium is cast upon the toms system.

Summary of the Week.

ce the issue of our last Summary, have passed through a week of more n ordinary dulness. The weather has tinued mild and genial, but no inci- ts have occurred to vary the mono- y of life. The news brought by the il of the 10th January deserves but le comment. The announcement of Princess Alexandra's accouchement l caused considerable rejoicing in gland. The Schleswig Holstein diffi- ty has not at yet received a solution, l seemed to promise a serious European plication. The Confederates had, up latest advices, shown no symptoms of ing in. Indeed little or no chance w exists of Lord Lyons' reported phesy being fulfilled.

The convict David Williams, whose ecution had been fixed for the 1st tant, succeeded in evading jus- e. On the evening of the 29th ult., was taken from the English jail to e room occupied by the American rshal. In order to arrive at this om he had to walk under the drop of e gallows erected for his execution. e did not, however, appear in the ast degree moved, and during the ening repeatedly asserted that he was ady for death, and would "die game." e eat and smoked, and about 9 o'clock ent to bed. The Marshal and jailor mained all night with him, taking by turns to watch. The jailor noticed at about half past five in the morning, e prisoner suddenly commenced to reathe very heavily, and on going to scertain the cause he found a pool of lood under the man's head. He thought at a blood vessel had burst, and accord- ingly reported the matter to the Deputy Consul, and obtained Medical assistance. In examination, however, it was found hat a knife had in some way come into he prisoner's possession, and that with his he had succeeded in making an ncision of considerable depth in his hroat, severing the principal vessels. No means were left untried to restore him to conciousness, but he died in about an hour from the time that the jailor noticed the change in his breathing. The minutes of the last Municipal Meeting are of merely local interest, and call for no notice at our hands. We find with much pleasure that an effort is now being made to revive the North-China Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society, which collapsed some two years and a half ago. A Meeting of old members, and of those interested in its resuscitation has been called for next Wednesday evening. We trust that many of the foreign residents will attend, and testify the interest which such a movement claims at their hands.

W. Bro. Cornelius Thorne, P.M. was last night entertained at dinner by the brethren of the Northern Lodge of China, No. 570. The toast of the evening was received with the most enthusiastic cheering, and no pains were spared to convince Brother Thorne of the appreciation which his labors have received at the hands of the Masons in Shanghai. The dinner and wines were excellent, and the arrangements in every respect admirable. The success of the evening depended so completely on the exertions of the stewards, that the vote of thanks which was presented to Bros. Tilby, Johnston and Levy was acknowledged by all in the room to have been well deserved. The Lodge was closed according to ancient usage at 1 A. M., and the Brethren separated.

Our letters from NINGPO report that the investment of Hangchow is progressing slowly, but that for the most part affairs remain in statu quo.

From HANKOW our only advices of importance are to the effect that a misunderstanding had arisen between the Agent of the Shanghai Steam Navigation Company and the Commissioner of Customs. We reproduce the correspondence which took place on the subject.

There have been no arrivals either from the ports of JAPAN or of the North of China. We are therefore without communications from our correspondents at those places.

HANKOW.

MINUTES OF A MEETING HELD AT THE CLUB HOUSE, HANKOW, ON THE 29TH FEB., 1864,

To take into consideration the detention of the "Huquong."

There were forty-five gentlemen present, and all the leading firms of China were represented. Mr. Cheshire proposed that Mr. John Mackellar do take the chair.

The Chairman explained the object of the meeting, exhatining upon the annoyance arising from the detention of the Huquong. He requested Mr Breck to read the correspondence on the subject. Mr. Breck read the correspondence consisting of—1st.—A.—Letter from the Acting Commissioner of Customs, of the 15th February. Copy appended.

2nd.—B.—Tidewaiter Gray's statement enclosed in A. Copy appended.

3rd.—C.—Letter from the Acting Commissioner of Customs of the 16th February. Copy appended.

4th.—D.—Affidavits of officers on board the Huquong, denying Tidewaiter Gray's statement. Copy appended.

5.—E.—Mr. Tidewaiter Gray's statement on oath before the U. S. Consul. Copy appended.

The Chairman asked if any gentleman having heard the correspondence had any observations to make.

Mr. J. T. Hudson proposed the following resolution to the meeting.

Resolved that this meeting do consider the detention of the Huquong unjustifiable under the circumstances. Seconded by Mr Townend.

The Chairman wished this resolution postponed, being desirous to know if Mr. C. D. Williams or any other gentleman had any remarks to make.

Mr. C. D. Williams rose and said that he thought a Committee should be appointed to write to Mr. Macpherson, the Acting Commissioner of Customs, to ask his reasons for the detention of the Huquong. Such a thing had never been heard of before. He considered the correspondence spoke for itself, that he was able to state, having made particular enquiry, that the high Chinese Officials had nothing to do with the detention, that they have never stopped business in any way, that Mr. Macpherson's letter defies all Treaty contracts, that unless he could explain his conduct, this meeting do request his resignation of a post that he was evidently unfit to hold. He was well aware that a meeting of merchants could not demand, but he thought they might suggest.

After this Mr. J. T. Hudson's proposition was put to the meeting, and was carried nem. con.

Mr. Jerdein said, having heard the correspondence just read, that he had a resolution to propose to the meeting which he thought would meet with general approbation.

Resolved that, in the opinion of this meeting, the Commissioner of Customs acted without carefully weighing the facts of the case, and at the same time exhibited a want of judgment in the detention of the Huquong, which has resulted not only in great inconvenience to the consignees and shippers, but to the public generally, who had availed themselves of that opportunity to write their homeward mail. Seconded by Mr. C. D. Williams, and carried nem. con.

Mr. Innes, in voting for Mr. Jerdein's resolution, wished to make a proposition which he thought expressed more strongly the feelings of the meeting.

Resolved that this meeting are of opinion that the Acting Commissioner of Customs not only shewed a want of judgment, but exceeded his authority, in detaining the Huquong, inasmuch as that vessel did not break the American treaty, or the Yangtsze regulations. Seconded by Mr. Lloyd, and carried nem. con.

Mr. J.H. Evans said that, as the Meeting were unanimous in condemning the proceedings of the Commissioner of Customs, the thing to be considered was to whom were they to look for redress, and proposed the following resolution.

Resolved, that a representation be made to H. B. M.'s Consul, shewing the very serious injury that such acts are calculated to inflict on the interests of this port, and praying for his interference in such manner as he may deem best, in order to secure protection to the community from such acts in future. Seconded by Mr. Ramsey and carried nem com.

Mr. Hardy proposed as follows:—

Resolved, that a Committee be formed consisting of the Chairman, Mr. Watmore and Mr. J. H. Evans, to wait on H. B. M's Consul, and to carry out the meeting's last resolution. Seconded by Mr. Deuce, and carried nem con.

Mr. Williams withdrew his former advice, as to addressing the Commissioner, as a letter from the Committee to H. B. M's Consul would have the same effect.

Mr. Watmore said that he thought it was preposterous that the whole trade of Hankow should be disorganized on account of a squabble between a Tidewaiter and an inferior officer on board a steamer, even supposing that the anything but choice language read in Mr. Gray's statement had been used, and he begged to propose the following resolution.

Resolved that this meeting do sympathise with Mr. Breck as agent of the S. N. Co. on account of what they consider the unjustifiable detention of the steamer Huquong. Seconded by Mr. C. D. Williams.

Mr. Littledale thought that the Commissioner was not responsible, but that the Taotai was responsible for the detention. Did the meeting know if the Taotai knew of and authorised the detention?

Mr. Breck said that the Taotai did not know, but sent for the Commissioner and ascertained the fact. The Taotai only knew that the vessel was detained on account of a squabble between the inferior officers of the Customs and of the Huquong. That the Commissioner had not the usual advantage of falling back on the Superintendent of Trade as he (Mr. Breck) had himself received a letter from the Taotai informing him that the matter lay with the Commissioner of Customs, as the Commissioner had been appointed from Pekin to manage such business.

Mr. Little wished to know on whose authority the vessel was eventually cleared.

Mr. Breck did not know.

Mr. Josephs proposed that a copy of these resolutions and of the proceedings of the meeting, be forwarded to the Chamber of Commerce at Shanghai and to the Inspector General of Customs at Shanghai. Seconded by Mr. Cheshire, and carried nem. con.

Mr. Menzies proposed a vote of thanks to the Chairman. Mr. Evans seconded it. Carried nem. con.

CORRESPONDENCE.

SIR,—I beg to forward to you, enclosed, a copy of a report which has been handed to me by Tide Waiter Gray, the Customs Officer posted on board of the steamer "Huquong," of the gross insults offered to himself and to the service to which he appertains by the Chief Officer and assistant Engineer of that Steamer.

I have also to inform you, that in the first instance, until ample written apologies are tendered to him, by both the Chief Officer and the assistant Engineer, the facilities over and above the Port regulations which have hitherto been conceded to the "Huquong" in common with other Steamers, the Officers on board of which have shewn no disposition to abuse them, will be withdrawn.

I must moreover warn you that unless these apologies are received in the course of this day, I shall be compelled to take even stronger measures to enforce their being made.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient servant,

Acting Comr. of Customs.

Hankow, Feb., 15th, 1864.

This morning I went on board the "Huquong" on duty at half past eight o'clock. The mess room boy told us that breakfast was ready. I went up first and sat down quietly, when Mr. Petersen the first assistant said "This coal I don't suppose will come down for a week, and then this G—d—m Custom House, I hate every son of a b— belonging to it," upon which the Chief Officer said, "They have no right whatsoever on board this ship anyhow," when Mr. Petersen said again "after this not another G— d—m Custom House officer shall come in here while I am here, they can come and have our leavings, they have no right here at all." This is not the first time I have been insulted by Mr. Petersen. The last time the Huquong was here, I was tidewaiter on board, and the last night she was in port they were taking coal until eleven o'clock P.M. Mr. Armstrong, the night watchman, came on board and told us to knock off, which I did. Mr. Petersen came down and asked if I had stopped work. I said I had, he then asked me if I would not take that Coal in. I said I was not allowed, he then said the same thing what he said this morning, swearing at me and every body belonging to the Custom House. This is all the particulars.

OFFICE OF CUSTOMS,
Hankow, 16th Feb., 1864.

SIR,—With reference to my letter of yesterday, I have now to remind you, that by the Treaty under which citizens of the United States carry on trade in China, Customs' officers have the right of living on board all American vessels which are discharging or shipping cargo. But this right becomes useless, when Customs' officers who avail themselves of it, expose themselves to insults for which they can obtain no redress.

No Customs' officer will consent to perform his duty on board of a vessel, when he is compelled to endure the foul language which I reported to you yesterday, but of which I have not as yet even received an expression of your disapproval.

Were I to compel Customs' officers to overlook such treatment, all respectable men would soon desert the service.

The commission therefore with impunity of outrages such as that which took place yesterday on board of the Huquong is equivalent to a prohibition of the presence of Customs' officers on board.

I have accordingly withdrawn the Customs' officers from on board the steamer Huquong, and will not replace them until the requisite apologies are made.

I have directed the Tide Surveyor to inform the master of the steamer, upon whom the entire responsibility in all matters connected with shipment or discharge of cargo will rest, that on the withdrawal of the Customs' officers the shipment and discharge of cargo must cease, and that all cargo shipped or discharged after this morning will be liable to be dealt with according to Regulations.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
(Sd.) A. MACPHERSON,
Acting Commissioner of Customs.

The above communication received from the Agent of the steamer Huquong.

And the said Petersen for himself, says, that he used no such language, and made use of no such expressions to said Gray, on the last trip of the "Huquong" nor at any other time, as has been stated by the said Gray in his said statement, and that the said Gray's statement, in so far as he pretends to give language used by him, the said Petersen, to him the said Gray, is totally and entirely false, and as he believes malicious.

BENSON'S WATCHES AND CLOCKS.
WATCH AND CLOCK MAKER,
BY SPECIAL APPOINTMENT, TO HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES.

Opinions of the London Press upon Benson's Great Clock and Watches in the Exhibition, 1862.

"As a sample of English clock-work on a large scale, the works of this are probably the finest finished that have ever been seen in this country. No Chronometer could be fitted with more perfect or carefully-adjusted mechanism."—Times, June 11, 1862.

"A triumph of ingenuity."—Telegraph, March 31, 1862.

"A more splendid and exquisitely-finished piece of mechanism we have never seen."—Standard, June 17, 1862.

"Some of them are of great beauty; and if the English watch-trade only follow up with the same spirit and success this first attempt to compete with foreigners in decorative watches, there seems to be no reason why we should not get the trade entirely into our own hands."—Times, June 23, 1862.

"Ranged around the base of the clock were the Watches which Mr. Benson exhibited, and which have been universally admired for the beauty and elegance of the designs engraved upon them. The movements are of the finest quality which the art of horology is at present capable of producing. The clock and watches were objects of great attraction, and well repaid the trouble of an inspection."—Illustrated London News, November 8, 1862.

HOMŒOPATHIC Practitioners, and the Medical Profession generally, recommend Cocoa as being the most healthful of all beverages. When the doctrine of Homœopathy was first introduced into this country, there were to be obtained no preparations of Cocoa either attractive to the taste or acceptable to the stomach; the nut was either supplied in its crude state, or so unskilfully manufactured as to obtain little notice.

J. Epps, of London, Homœopathic chemist, was induced in the year 1839, to turn his attention to this subject, and at length succeeded, with the assistance of elaborate machinery, in being the first to produce an article pure in its composition, and so refined by the perfect trituration it receives in the process it passes through, as to be acceptable to the delicate stomach, and a most desirable breakfast beverage. For General use

EPPS'S COCOA

Is distinguished as being
INVIGORATING, GRATEFUL, and possessing a most
DELICIOUS AROMA;
And to those qualities it is indebted for the adoption it now obtains as a
